2. K’Nex STEM Challenge Winners

The CSIU again sponsored and hosted the K’Nex STEM Design challenge in April. As part of the challenge, students were tasked to devise a solution to an engineering problem. This year’s challenge was to design a building at least one meter tall. Prior to the competition, teams drafted blueprints and wrote short narratives about their projects. At the Design Challenge, students used the blueprints to recreate their projects, which were displayed for the judges to critique. During the presentation, teams had to show the strength of their building (using books, weights, etc.) and also address how it was environmentally friendly. Teams then culminated their experience by presenting information about the processes they used to create their structures. Seventy-eight grade 4-5 students from nine districts and two non-public schools (Bloomsburg Area, Central Columbia, Danville Area, Greenwood Friends, Lourdes Regional, Midd-West, Millville Area, Milton Area, Shikellamy, Southern Columbia Area and Warrior Run) as well as 92 grade 6-8 students from 12 districts and two non-public schools (Benton Area, Bloomsburg Area, Central Columbia, Danville Area, Greenwood Friends, Lewisburg Area, Lourdes Regional, Midd-West, Mifflinburg Area, Millville Area, Milton Area, Selinsgrove Area, Southern Columbia Area and Warrior Run) competed in the competition. The first- and second-place teams from each competition received K’Nex trophies to display at their schools. First-place teams from each age group will compete in a statewide event at Harrisburg University of Science and Technology. The CSIU was one of 20 intermediate units statewide that hosted a K’Nex STEM Design Challenge, which was funded by Thermo Fisher Scientific.
